Facts about Refugees and Asylum Seekers British Red Cross

Refugee Week in the UK - 17th to 23rd June 2024

Right now, over 100 million people have been forced to flee their homes according to the UN Refugee Agency. The number of displaced persons exceeded 100 million for the first time in 2022.

This has more than doubled compared to ten years ago and 35 per cent of this group are children.

Most displaced people, 74 per cent, are hosted in low- and middle-income countries. And 69 per cent are in neighbouring countries or places close to the country they have fled.

What's the difference between asylum seekers and refugees?

There's often confusion around what asylum seekers, refugees and migrants are and the labels used to describe them, which can be unhelpful.

Below, we look at the most common terms used to describe people who leave their countries for different reasons.

What's an asylum seeker?

A person seeking asylum:

- flees their home
- arrives in another country, whichever way they can
- makes themselves known to the authorities
- submits an asylum application
- has a legal right to stay in the country while waiting for a decision.

How many asylum seekers are in the UK?

In 2022, the UK received applications for asylum for 89,398 people (including dependants). This is far fewer people applying for asylum in the UK compared to other countries. It's around three times less than the number of applications received by Germany (243,835), and considerably less than France (156,455) and Spain (117,945).

What's a refugee?

A refugee:

- has proven that they'd be at risk if returned to their home country
- has had their claim for asylum accepted by the government
- has permission to stay in the UK either long term or indefinitely.

Refugees have a right under UK and international law to bring their immediate family members to join them.

Refused asylum seekers

A refused asylum seeker:

- hasn't been able to prove that they would face persecution back home
- has been denied protection by the authorities
- must now leave the country unless they want to appeal the decision or it isn't safe or practical for them to return home (for example, they have a serious health condition or can't get the documents they need to travel).

What is a migrant?

A migrant:

- has moved to another country, for example to work, study or join family members
- may be living there temporarily or permanently depending on their situation.

LOVE > PRAY > VOTE

I am, and have long been, a Christian Socialist because I believe it offers the best pathway to live out my faith in the modern affluent Western world. In the light of a fraught and upcoming general election, it might be useful to explore what this allegiance entails (as it was taught to me during my training at Mirfield. – Fr. Anthony Grant C.R. tells the story of one of the brethren, some years ago, hitch-hiking home when a passing motorist stopped to give a lift, but upon recognising a 'Mirfield monk' said 'Your community stands for the two things I despise most in this world: Catholicism and Communism.' And drove off.)

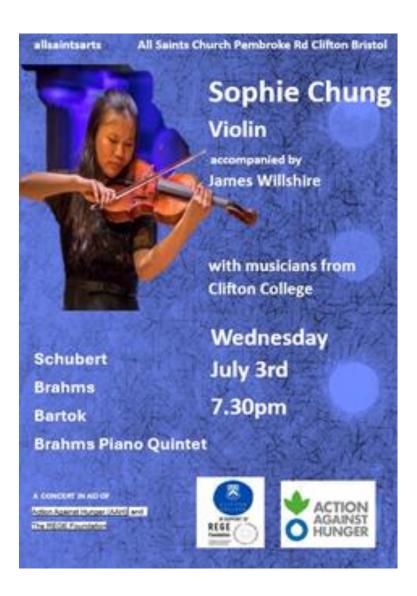

Firstly, a Christian Socialist is a democratic socialist: not a Marxist or Communist. We believe in and accept free markets (with government. managed safe-guards and safety nets for the poorest and most powerless in the community) while seeking to restrain the more self-destructive excesses of Capitalism. This means safeguarding disability and other benefits while deploying and enhancing the taxation structures to create opportunities for everyone. Christian socialists believe that society should be ordered, and the economy run not simply from a profit motive, but democratically to meet human need, so we support moves to end the two-child benefit cap, and to roll out free school meals.

There will be a redistributive tool element to this, but more fundamentally it means underpinning and enhancing the NHS, - not privatising by the front or back doors, and extending it to encompass social care that is properly funded and remunerated — as well as strengthening and promoting endearing excellence in state education. Here there are lessons to be learned from the systems of Wales, Scotland, Canada and Finland. A priority must also be to end student debt, abolish fees, and restore student grants. We believe that it is advantageous for the state to manage the infrastructure of the country directly: especially utilities.

Christian socialists work to re-establish fairness in the workplace: we look for an end to "Fire and rehire" and "Fixed term contracts" After all, the Left came into existence, all those years ago, in order to fight for working people.

We also believe in holding all Parties to all the green pledges they have ever made, and that this can be done economically in the future without penalising the less well-off. Similarly, all plans involving further reliance on fossil fuels (e.g. Rosebank) should be re-examined. Finally, we need to address the adequate funding of our armed forces. Finally, and internationally, it seems appropriate to support the Leader of the Free World's policy on Ukraine, as well as his plan for peace with justice in Gaza and the West Bank.

Fr Paul Tiernan.

Puccini's Trilogy

You are warmly invited to WNO Friends' talk on Wednesday 19 June in The Apostle Room, Clifton Cathedral at 7.15 pm

Il trittico (The Triptych) comprises three short(ish) operas by Puccini. When all three are performed together, they make for a very diverse experience . Il tabarro (The Cloak) is a typical verismo opera about jealousy and revenge whilst Suor Angelica (Sister Angelica) is a tragedy set in a convent. The third opera, Gianni Schicchi, is the most often performed opera and Puccini's only comedy. Ian Cartwright will introduce us to these three operas, illustrating how Puccini utilised such contrasting styles of composition which display his talent for versatility and concision. NB The evening will begin with a very short AGM Easy parking, bar, Friends £8, Visitors £10 . All Saints is a Dementia Aware Organization

ASC is also the proud holder of the BDAA Gold Award. Our aim is to raise dementia awareness and understand wherever possible and to provide an inclusive and welcoming environment for all who live with dementia, their friends, family and carers.

What is Dementia?

If you, a friend or a relative have been diagnosed with Dementia, you may be feeling anxious or confused. It makes us ask a lot of questions, including what causes dementia and how it is diagnosed. things, for example describing the function, instead of naming it. These symptoms occur when the brain is damaged by diseases, including Alzheimer's Disease, or damage caused by a stroke or a series of small strokes.

The term 'Dementia' describes a set of symptoms, which includes:

- Loss of memory this particularly affects short term memory, e.g. forgetting what happened earlier in the day, not being able to recall conversations, being repetitive or forgetting the way home from the shops. Long term memory may still be quite good.
- Mood changes people with dementia may be withdrawn, sad, anxious, frightened or angry about what is happening to them.
- Communication problems including problems finding the right words for things, for example describing the function, instead of naming it.

These symptoms occur when the brain is damaged by diseases, including Alzheimer's Disease, or damage caused by a stroke or a series of small strokes.

Dementia is progressive, which means that the symptoms will gradually get worse. How fast Dementia progresses will depend on the individual and also what type of Dementia they have. Each person is unique and will experience Dementia in his/ her own way. It is often the case that the person's family and friends are more concerned about the symptoms than the person themselves!

However, you cannot catch Dementia!

THE ALL SAINTS' PARISH RETREAT 17-19 MAY 2024

On Friday 17th May, thirteen of us descended on Llangasty Retreat House, by the shores of Llangorse Lake, for our annual weekend retreat, led this year by Fr Paul Hawkins.

'Where are you; where is your brother?': The word of Joy is at the heart of our faith, God is always seeking us and asking 'Where are you? Do not hide from me, don't be afraid'. Fr Paul told us a story of a boy in Auschwitz whose only place of solitude was a dung heap. All he could say sitting there was "God, I hate you". After a while he was astonished to feel an overwhelming sense of God's loving presence. Even in the darkest of times, God comes with a gentle, loving invitation to come to him.

Then Fr Paul addressed the question 'Please tell me your name', 'have you seen him whom my heart loves?', 'what kind of being are you, who are you?': We should accept we are unconditionally loved by God and lift our false images of God. The Song of Songs is an allegory of us seeking after God – God waits for us to be ready.

'Do not humans have a hard service on earth?': Here Fr Paul spoke of an incident from Dostoevsky's The Brother's Karamasov where he imagines Christ meeting with the Grand Inquisitor where the Grand Inquisitor asks why Christ didn't accept the temptations in the wilderness. Christ says nothing, but kisses the Grand Inquisitor – the answer being that God's love allows our free will. Fr Paul also focused on how much The Psalms help us in our conversations with God.

'Is it right for you to be angry?': Unrighteous anger destroys us and leads to depression and anxiety. Christ on the cross absorbs our anger.

'How will this happen?' The Virgin Mary questions the Angel Gabriel, who in the Annunciation has just told her that she will be the mother of Jesus Christ. In doing this, God brings the divine world and the human world together. The overwhelming love of God – the coming together of divine and human will – is bound up in Mary's response: "I am the Lord's servant. May it be to me as you have said".

The whole weekend was a joy and a rest with beautiful weather so that we could sit in the sun and listen to the gentle sounds of the sheep, cows and horses in the field between us and the lake. When anyone wanted to talk they did so, outside away from those of us who wished to remain silent. The retreat house is comfortable and we're well looked after. It's set in a beautiful spot with glorious views of the lake and the mountains, and we returned to Bristol refreshed – physically, mentally and spiritually.

Next year's retreat is provisionally booked for the third weekend of May, Friday 16th to Sunday 18th May 2025, so do pencil the dates in your diaries – more information will be circulated at the beginning of next year.
